

Discipline Cards

By Erica @ www.confessionsofahomeschooler.com

This download includes 2 pages of Color Discipline Cards and 2 pages of Black and White Discipline Cards. We use these as a consequence for disobedience, and sometimes bad behavior with our children. If they disobey, they pull a discipline card from a jar. They are expected to complete that discipline, then follow through with whatever they were asked to do originally. If they refuse to complete their discipline card, they get what's called a motivator, something such as losing TV privileges, or their Nintendo DS or whatever is of value to them at that time.

If one of the children receives a discipline card during they day, it goes behind their name on our chore chart once they are finished. This way when Dad comes home, he can see who has had a bad day and choose to discuss it with them.

I included one card called "Help Mom Cook". This is our "mercy" card. Most kids like to help cook, and we want to show them how sometimes they receive something they do not deserve. You can choose to remove this card from the stack, or add it to your weekly chore chart as well!
